Utility Companies Pay You Hundreds of Dollars to Improve Your Home

Utility companies are offering rebates to make homes more energy efficient as heating and cooling costs rise. Louise Hansen has 3 years experience as an energy auditor and will guide home owners to take advantage of energy efficiency improvement rebates from KCP&L, MGE (Laclede Gas) and Liberty Utilities. Owner of EnergySmart, LLC, she helps home owners create a comfortable, healthy and efficient home.

Centerview, MO, December 22, 2014 - KCP&L, Liberty Utilities and MGE (Laclede Gas) offer rebates to customers for making energy efficiency improvements to their home. Since some home owners may already be thinking about improvements, it is a win-win situation for them.

Available to home owners now, those who participate in the Home Performance Rebate with Energy Star program may earn up to $600 from both KCP&L and MGE for implementing at least one qualifying home improvement. The program process starts with a home energy audit done by a participating auditor. Those served by Liberty Utilities may earn up to $5000 in incentives. The Energize Liberty Utilities Homes also starts with a home energy audit. The program is designed to help owners complete home improvements that conserve energy, save money and increase comfort. Both HpwES and Energize Liberty Utilities Homes are administered by Metropolitan Energy Center (MEC), a non-profit organization located in Kansas City, Missouri.

To get started in either program, contact Louise Hansen, who is a participating auditor and owner of EnergySmart, LLC, at 816-732-6831 or go to www.energysmartllc.weebly.com and choose Contact Us. You may also contact MEC directly.

EnergySmart, LLC is a full service home energy performance company offering energy audits, HERS Ratings, Home Energy Score assessments, consultations, and energy modeling services. EnergySmart, LLC offers services to home owners and offers services and consultation to builders, HVAC and insulation contractors, real estate agents and mortgage lenders.
